Research in Progress

"Building a Public Dashboard for Communication of Wastewater-based Epidemiology" (On-Going). (September 1, 2024 - Present).

"Correlation of SARS-CoV-2 Wastewater Concentration and New COVID-19 Cases in Kent County, Michigan" (On-Going). (February 10, 2023 - Present).

Throughout the pandemic, Wastewater-Based Epidemiology (WBE) has been incorporated with clinical data alongside other surveillance measures to inform decision-making by public health officials as transmission levels changed. Although most non-pharmaceutical preventative measures instituted to slow transmission of the SARS-CoV-2 virus have been relaxed, the virus remains present in the community, presenting a risk to public health. WBE offers a cheap, effective method of tracking the spread of virus in local communities. While both WBE and clinical data were used in decision-making, the relationship between the two is still emerging. Our goal was to utilize 20 months of clinical and wastewater data to elucidate that relationship.
